It's more than saving blood, it's about saving lives.

StemCyte Family is the family bank of StemCyte, Inc., a company that runs one of the largest and most ethnically diverse donor cord blood bank networks in the world. StemCyte was founded with one driving commitment: to help save lives by providing the highest quality stem cells to transplant medical centers.

StemCyte Family extends our commitment to every family entrusting us with this precious resource. We use the same procedures, quality controls, and U.S. laboratory when storing your baby's blood that have earned StemCyte acceptance from some of the most highly respected accrediting agencies and from leading transplant hospitals and physicians.

StemCyte's cord blood processing laboratories have now provided more than 300 cord blood stem cell units for transplant, treating more than 25 different diseases in more than nearly 100 hospitals around the world. We continue to provide units for transplantation at the rate of 2-3 per week. All of our StemCyte Family units are processed using our StemCyte Stem Cell Optimization Process, saving as many stem cells as possible so that they will be ready should your baby ever need them.

Thank you for storing your baby's precious stem cells with StemCyte Family and for caring enough to share this information with your friend. We wish you and your family good health.
